I have the canon lbp 1210 in my desktop.It work fine in my laptop with ubuntu and win XP.But it don't work fine in my desktop with windows 7.i have try the driver from canon website.But after install it,the canon software doesn't recognize the printer and don't have any option to make any job in my printer.i have read that is a common problem with this printer,but i can't find any help in internet. so, please can you help me to fix this problem??? I don't know if i have to use a new driver or re-install the windows 7 or what. Doyle Hi, I am trying to solve a problem I have had for a few years with a hp printer/scanner. Our house has central air conditioning and it does not pick up the hp all in one 1020 that is in my office. I used to be able to print just fine from my home but now it is more difficult. When I go to the printer settings and print a test page the page comes out blank. I do not have this problem with my HP printer in my home office. I have tried a clean install of windows 7 and also tried to make a good connection by using a different router. I have made sure that it is on the right side of the house (with a clear line of sight). My printer is running the software from canon and I have also tried the HP software and the Canon software to connect. I have tried resetting the printer and the computer. Everything I try tells me that the printer is connected but it is not printing. I have uninstalled the printer and reinstalled it and it still does not connect. If anyone has any other ideas or ideas that I have missed please let me know. any help would be great. My brother bought me a hp printer (a few years ago) It worked fine on my XP machine so i installed a computer with windows 7. My problem is that I can not seem to get it to print. It works fine in my parents pc, and the other one that I have tried. I have tried two different computers, and reset it twice, and uninstalled the driver and reinstalled it. I have tried with and without the software, and also the software from canon, and the hp one. Nothing works. Is there any way I can reset my printer? If so how do I do it?I have searched all over and 82157476af
